Project Description

The Te Atatu Peninsula Community Centre and Library is a new building to replace the existing community centre and library on the same site. The project brief required a large community hall suitable for passive and active activities and a series of meeting rooms ranging in size from small to large. The library required a large lending area for all sections of their library in an open plan flexible space. There is a work-room, staff facilities and toilets attached to the library space. The project has been a successful addition to the community and enjoyed by all with significant increase in numbers using the facility since it opened.

Innovation in Design

The project adopts the council policy of providing sustainable design features into the project with a passive design approach to heating and cooling where possible. The project provides an integrated art project with a large artwork sunscreen to the Te Atatu road frontage
